

HOPE FOR TRUTH ON UNEMPLOYED AT CONFERENCE

Joint Hearing to Be Held by Both Houses Today

FIGURES VARY GREATLY

May Include Inmates of The Several State Institutions

By William B. Brown (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—At a joint hearing of both houses at two o'clock this afternoon members of the Legislature hope to remove the veil of rhetoric and uncertainty which has shrouded many phases of the unemployment situation.

Called to consider an unemployment program in which Gov. Gifford Pinchot reported a jobless total of 900,000 or "one fourth of our workers," the Legislature discovered yesterday that the estimating branch of the Department of Labor and Industry had added another 69,000 to its own figures.

The last actual count of the unemployed was made by the U. S. Census Bureau in April of 1930 and the total then was placed at 325,000. Since then various agencies of the State Government and special agencies have vied with one another in arriving at the highest possible total.

So far no one seems to know whether the total reported as unemployed includes the inmates of asylums and almshouses, not to mention the penitentiaries and correctional institutions or whether it is the number of those who are willing and able to work.

There are many members in both houses who are anxious to know the truth and who assert that it is impossible to vote millions to aid the idle without knowing just how many want work.

In each speech the Governor has made recently he has warned that unless the millions he asks are voted "our people are going to starve this winter."

Members of the Legislature hope to find out this afternoon just where this starvation is forecast as certain and to learn from those communities just what steps local agencies have taken to prevent such possibilities. It has been admitted from the first that there is little or no acute want in the agricultural counties, at least fifty in number and sections of the anthracite belt yesterday were reported as busier than at any time since 1927.

Even members of both houses who are friendly to the administration assert that the exact communities where local agencies are unable to cope with the situation should be named. If such agencies are failing to meet the need or are expected to fail in the future, then a program of State Aid may be considered.

As planned the joint session will ask at least six cabinet members to appear before it and testify as to what their departments have done to cope with the situation. Those scheduled for appearance include the secretaries of agriculture, labor and industry, mines, welfare, health and the superintendent of public instruction.

Should the necessity arrive additional state officers will be asked to appear and state briefly what they know of actual conditions rather than the repeated surveys which have been made.

The calendars of both houses contain nothing but routine subjects for consideration and no real fight is expected until the revenue raising measures are acted upon finally in committee or reported to the floor.

High School Teacher Speaks to Young Folks

The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian Church had Mr. Silas Shoemaker, of the Bristol High School as speaker on Sunday evening.

A very interesting talk was given by Mr. Shoemaker and enjoyed by all present.

Sunday evening, November 29th, a contest will start for increasing the membership, and will continue for three months. At the end of six weeks the status of the contest will be announced.

All members are requested to be present on Sunday evening for further instructions.

Inaugural Dance to Be Held in Mutual Aid Hall

Tomorrow evening there will be an inaugural dance held in the new hall of the Italian Mutual Aid Society, Wood street, between Jefferson and Lincoln avenues.

This is one of the newest halls in Bristol and will make a very attractive place to dance. There will be a good orchestra in attendance and a pleasing evening is in store for those who attend.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE

The public schools will close Wednesday at 2.45 p. m. and will remain closed until Monday, November 30th.

Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts, Told of Thanksgiving

The members of Troop No. 2 met as usual in the St. James's parish house last evening for their regular weekly meeting. At this time, twenty-seven scouts signified their intention of re-registering for the troop year, which starts in December.

After the boys had registered, a period of individual patrol instructions was held under the leadership of Eagle Scouts Robert Wright and George Herman, and Senior Patrol Leader William Warner; during which the scouts passed tests assigned by their patrol leaders and also decided on their patrol "good turn" for the Thanksgiving week.

Then with the troop in council formation, Troop Committeeman David Landreth told the boys the story of "Thanksgiving," taking them back to that first Thanksgiving Day in 1622, in Massachusetts. The boys were very much impressed by the story as told by Mr. Landreth, and his talk was applauded in a very hearty manner by the whole troop, led by Cheer Leader Charles Hughes.

During the games period which followed, the scouts played "Rip Van Winkle" and "Blind Man Boxing." This latter game was a blindfold bout between Scouts Lawrence McCoy and Albert Booz; and although the majority of the spectators agreed on a draw the final decision was awarded to the referee.

Among those present at the meeting were: Chairman of Troop Committee Frank Wright and Troop Committeemen David Landreth and Walter E. Leonberger.

The meeting closed with the forming of the Circle of Good Fellowship and the singing of Taps by the entire troop.

SUICIDES SHOW INCREASE IN STATE DURING YEAR

921 Suicidal Deaths Reported During First Eight Months

BLAME THE DEPRESSION

By Joseph A. Loftus (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 24.—(INS)—Of the nine and a half million inhabitants of Pennsylvania, 95.4 per cent are white, a lower proportion than in preceding censuses, a study of Department of Health records disclosed today.

An almost perfect balance of the two sexes among the whites is shown. Males make up 50.3 per cent of the population, while the female percentage is 49.7.

The report of the Bureau of Vital Statistics showed that Pennsylvania's suicidal toll is on the increase. If it continues at its present rate the number of deaths by suicide in 1931 will reach the highest mark of any year in the history of the State.

During the first eight months of 1931 there have been 921 suicidal deaths reported. This total represents an increase of 4 per cent over the same period for 1930 and 8.1 per cent over the 1929 figure.

Computed on a yearly basis, the rate for 1931 would be 14.2 per 100,000 population, or approximately 1,381, a number greater than has ever been recorded by the Department. The suicide toll in 1929 was 1,365.

The suicide rate, like the marriage and birth rates, is influenced to a certain extent by economic conditions, the report explained. "During a period of financial depression the rate naturally rises. However, monetary losses do not account for all the mortality from suicide. Ill health, domestic difficulties and other unknown factors are contributory causes for the suicide rate."

Between 20 and 25 per cent of the suicides are persons in the age group, 45 to 54 years. The next largest number is found in the preceding ten-year period, 35 to 44 years.

Suicide by firearms constituted over a third of the aggregate, with hanging second and poisonous gas third in importance. In 1930, poisons taken with suicidal intent claimed 105 lives.

The survey showed that the majority of suicide deaths occur in the urban sections of the State.

On the basis of figures for the first eight months from communities of over 25,000 population, McKeesport will lead the State in suicide rates during 1931. McKeesport's rate is 32.4, an increase of 15.3 over 1927. Lebanon, with a rate of 5.8 per cent, is the lowest for 1931, showing a sharp decrease from 23.7 per cent in 1927.

The second highest 1931 suicide rate exists in York, with a 26.7 per cent age. New Castle is third with 21.4 per cent.

Other centers in the order of their percentage rates follow: Alliquippa, 21; Chester, 20.2; Williamsport, 19.2; Erie, 19; Harrisburg, 18.6; Reading, 17.5; Allentown, 17.4; Lancaster, 17.3; Sharon, 17; Hazleton, 16.1; Wilkinsburg, 14.9; Scranton, 14.6; Philadelphia, 13.9; Wilkes-Barre, 13.6; Pittsburgh and Easton, 13; Bethlehem, 12.8; Johnstown, 9; Norristown, 8.3; Altoona, 7.1.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY

Parent-Teacher Association of Bucks County Names Officers for Ensuing Year—Solebury Township Home Damaged by Blaze—S. P. C. A. Builds New Animal Shelter

At an interesting Fall meeting of the Bucks County Council, Parent-Teacher Association, held in the Robert Morris High School, Morrisville, Saturday, officers were elected and instructions on program making were given.

Mrs. Ralph M. Fox, of Morrisville, who presided over the session, was reelected president. Miss Virginia Neely, of Langhorne, was reelected recording secretary; Miss Henrietta Ellin, of Morrisville, corresponding secretary; H. C. Lamb, of Trevose, treasurer.

The vice-presidents elected are: First vice-president, Mrs. George W. Willard, of Morrisville; second vice-president, Miss Beatrice Zarr, Siles; third vice-president, Mrs. Louise White Watson, of Fallsington; fourth vice-president, Miss Virginia Billmyer, of Warrington Township.

The assembly was an afternoon session, and following the business meeting there was a round table discussion of program making. Mrs. Fox led this discussion, and some of the others who took part included Theodore Gottlieb and Mrs. J. A. Flood, of New Hope; Mrs. George Willard, of Morrisville, and Mr. Liebau, of New Britain. Prof. J. H. Hoffman, of Doylestown, county superintendent of public schools, was present and made a few remarks.

The Parent-Teacher Association of New Britain had the largest number of representatives present at the meeting, and Morrisville was second. Those from here who attended were Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Frank Braker, president of the Morrisville Home and School League; Mrs. George Burr, Mrs. J. Leslie White and Miss Henrietta Ellin.

Fire partly destroyed the home of Halter N. Ely, near Aquetong, in Solebury Township, late Saturday night. No one was at home when the fire was discovered by persons passing the farm, Mr. and Mrs. Ely and their son, Lawrence, and the former's mother, Mrs. Ella Ely, all being at a meeting of the Solebury Farmers' Club at the home of A. H. Vasey.

The Eagle Fire Company, of New Hope, and the light apparatus from both the Union and Hibernia Companies, of Lambertville, were dispatched to the fire. When first discovered the blaze was confined to the frame kitchen part of the house, and before it was checked it had spread through most of the second floor.

Mr. Ely was notified of the fire and he, with all the men of the club, hurried to save what they could from the house. Much of the furniture in the stone part of the ground floor was taken out, but the upper part of the house was badly damaged. No estimate has been set on the loss, but Mr. Ely believes it is mostly covered by insurance. Until the building can be made tenable again, the family is residing in the Thomas Bagz house nearby.

This house was partly destroyed by fire 18 years ago, and Mr. Ely was badly burned, while fighting the fire from the roof, which collapsed.

No explanation can be given for this fire of Saturday night. There had been no fire in any stove in the house since early afternoon and incendiaryism seems to be the only cause possible.

FALLSINGTON SCOUTS WEEK-END AT BUCCOU

Have Jolly Time Along With Group from Morrisville

CONTESTS CONDUCTED

FALLSINGTON, Nov. 24.—The Fallsington and Morrisville Boy Scouts spent the week-end at Camp Buccou, Flemington, N. J. There were 32 boys in attendance, and 8 men. They arrived at the camp at 3 p. m. Saturday, and left at 3.30 on Sunday. Each boy made his own pie and cooked his own food.

Those who won prizes in the contests were: Push up: Frank Wilmut, Troop No. 3; Owen Taylor, Troop No. 3; chariot race, Sidney Snelson, Burton Lettemer, Robert Steele, all of Troop No. 2; crab race, Owen Taylor, Troop No. 3; cock fight, George Sine, Troop No. 3; Indian wrestling, Richard Sultzach, No. 3; skunk race, John Gould, No. 4; horse pull, Robert Sultzach, No. 4; Owen Taylor, No. 3; signalling, James Antrobus, No. 3.

Devotional services were held in the camp chapel. The boys took a 14 mile hike Saturday night and they passed several Scout tests.

In the cooking contest, Marshall Duerr, won; in the hiking contest, Shirley and Marshall Duerr, Victor Roberts, Edwin and Harvey Heggings and Francis Lovett, were the winners. Mr. Fred D. Watson, Scoutmaster, accompanied the Fallsington boys.

several members of the Bucks County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, when they saw the great improvements made to the society's new shelter for animals near Lahaska.

The meeting was held at the society's new farm home and was attended by about twenty members from many parts of the county.

Before the meeting they were shown over the place which comprises 15 acres of land, a house, a barn and several smaller buildings. It was bought with money loaned by the Pennsylvania society—a loan the society hopes to pay off with contributions from persons interested in humane education and all it implies, including the care of homeless and unwanted animals.

Some day, it is believed, friends of this excellent work will remember the society in their wills and bequests. Unfortunately all of the bequests in the past few years have gone to the State society because the county society had not been so active nor so well advertised.

All that has been changed—except the bequests which in a few years have amounted to about $30,000 for the State society.

Never in the history of the county has the Bucks County S. P. C. A. been so active as it has been for the past three years—and its work is growing by leaps and bounds, because of the demand for its services and the excellent service it has given.

Hundreds of unwanted dogs and cats have been taken over by the society. A great many of them were given good homes. The sick or unwanted have been put painlessly out of their misery in a monoxide gas tank.

In addition to this, because of its excellent shelter kennels the society has been able to provide a needed service by "boarding" dogs.

Now it is better equipped than ever. Kennels for a large number of dogs have been built—clean, dry, well lighted kennels with individual runs—and were greatly admired by the visitors. Nothing indicates the growing interest.

OUTLINE YEAR'S WORK FOR COUNTY W. C. T. U.

Thirty-Eight Women Hold Conference at Harper Residence

MEET AT QUAKERTOWN

YARDLEY, Nov. 24.—Thirty-eight women held a two-session conference on November 21 at the home of Mrs. Lucy Harper, planning the work of Bucks County W. C. T. U. for the ensuing year. Every local union except Riegelsville was represented, and all officers and most directors were present. Mrs. I. B. Garges, of Doylestown, was named as director of temperance and missions.

Miss Gladys Harper urged each group to be a life-line union, giving $5 for missions and sending the union signal to some foreign missionary.

Miss Augusta Dickerson, formerly a missionary in Japan, now a guest of Miss Emily Packer, of Newtown, gave many interesting remarks as to the gradual advance of temperance sentiment in that nation.

The first Thursday in January has been set as a day of prayer for all white ribboners. Local unions will not plan to hold separate Washington celebrations in 1932, but will co-operate with other societies. The newly-organized board of strategy with headquarters at Washington, D. C., will in its dime card project receive the help of many W. C. T. U. members.

A letter was read from Mrs. Berthold Boyles, of State College, who is newly-appointed editor of the State W. C. T. U. Bulletin, which stressed the need of promptly sent and addressed reports.

York was announced as the place for the next State Convention.

Miss Caroline Deal, of Philadelphia, was highly recommended as a S. T. I. speaker for schools.

"The Wet Parade" by Upton Sinclair, received favorable publicity. A resolution was passed to be sent to President Hoover showing the union's interest in the World Court and the 1932 Geneva Disarmament Conference.

The treasurer reported the membership as having passed the one thousand mark. It was also stated that the History of Bucks Union and of the 18 locals had been completed and sent to the State for publication. The inter-county groups have been reduced from 12 to 6. Nine counties are now in the group of which Bucks is a part instead of the former five, and the sessions cover two days instead of one. The nation, too, is divided into regions; a conference for this region is to be held in Washington December 4th, 5th and 6th.

The thirteen department directors who presented their various programs of work showed that an active union must cover a very broad field of activity.

The Spring Institute in April will convene at Quakertown.

MRS. PROPHET TO APPEAL

Philadelphia, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, serving a life sentence for the slaying of her husband, today was confronted with the possibility of being sent to the electric chair if her appeal for a new trial is granted by the Supreme Court. This warning was given her attorney, Samuel Moyerland, by Supreme Court Justice J. W. Kephardt. Moyerland appeared before the higher court yesterday pleading for a new trial for Mrs. Prophet and her brother, Harold E. Williams, former Bucks County farmer, sentenced to the electric chair for his part in the murder. Moyerland, after being warned by Justice Kephardt, declared he did not fear the sentence of Mrs. Prophet would be changed to death in the electric chair.

GANDHI GETS ROPE

London, Eng., Nov. 24.—The first thing in the nature of a threat reaching Mahatma M. K. Gandhi since he came here for the Indian round table conference was deliberate today. A package containing strong rope accompanied by a letter telling the champion of Indian intelligence to go hang himself in Hyde Park. The writer offered to assist. Gandhi is being heavily guarded by police and detectives. Wherever he goes a police car precedes that in which he is riding, and another follows it. The Mahatma exhausted with the extent of his labors here, is threatened with a nervous breakdown, it was learned today.

JAPANESE IN ACTION

Tokyo, Japan, Nov. 24.—Japanese infantry, cavalry and air force went into action today against the so-called Chinese "bandit army" in Southern Manchuria as the foreign office admitted occupation of Chin-Chow was contemplated if China fails to withdraw her troops inside the great wall. The activities centered about Taton and Peiping-Mukden railway lines. Latest reports received stated little actual fighting occurred. The poorly disciplined Chinese army retreated with the appearance of the Japanese planes.

PLANE KILLS TWO

Lafayette, Pa., Nov. 24.—Two men were killed instantly and a third was so seriously injured he will probably die, when they were struck by an airplane at the Lafayette Airport here early today while waiting to make a flight. Robert Pescatore, 24, and Philip Duffy, both of Lafayette, died instantly when the plane, piloted by Lewis Strickland, 18, crashed into them as they stood in the murky dawn watching Strickland make a landing after three night flying trials. Allen Feathers, 21, also of Lafayette, was struck by the plane and rushed to a hospital, where doctors said he had suffered a broken neck, internal hurts and severe lacerations and would probably die. Neither Strickland nor Joseph Reddy, a passenger in the plane, were hurt in the accident.

Chicken thieves are active throughout Bucks County and last night the coop of Charles Younger, 330 Taft street, was visited and 11 hens and 1 rooster stolen.

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE WILL OPEN THURSDAY

Money is Used to Fight Tuberculosis Throughout the County

1200 PERSONS AFFLICTED

The 25th annual sale of Christmas seals will begin in Bucks county on Thanksgiving Day and continue until Christmas, it was announced today. The county seal sale will be launched in the county under the auspices of the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society. The entire amount for the work of the society will have to be raised through the sale of the seals and the health bonds as this is the only source of income the society has.

The Bucks County Seal Sale is a part of the national sale conducted under the auspices of the National Tuberculosis Association for the purpose of raising $5,000,000 for the nation wide control of the white plague. The county organization is affiliated with the Pennsylvania State Society and the National Tuberculosis Association and is entrusted with the administration of Bucks County's anti-tuberculosis program.

Ten thousand letters containing sheets of the Christmas Seals will go out from the office of the Society this week. The Society urges that a return on these letters be made as soon as possible.

Bucks County has about 1200 persons afflicted with tuberculosis and every one is urged to do all they can in fighting in the control and prevention of this dread disease.

Bunting Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow Afternoon

Funeral services for the late Margaret Stewart Bunting, wife of C. H. Bunting, will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from her late residence, 216 Cedar street. The Rev. George F. Hess will be in charge assisted by the Rev. Howard L. Zupp. Mrs. Bunting was a member of the Bristol M. E. Church. Burial will be made in Beechwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Bunting was well and favorably known here, having resided in Bristol most of her lifetime. She died Sunday evening in the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, where she had been confined for the past eight weeks. Death was due to hardening of the arteries.

Mrs. Bunting was a native of Bristol and was the daughter of the late Charles and Elizabeth Bailey. After her marriage she and her husband took up their residence in Bensalem Township where they resided for eight years and then moved back to Bristol. She was in her 70th year.

The survivors are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Crosby, and Mrs. Jennie Fabs, both of Philadelphia; two sisters, Mrs. Harriett Beatty, Philadelphia; and Mrs. Ella Turkington, Iowa.

Friends may call this evening.

CARD PLAYERS COMPETE FOR FIFTEEN TURKEYS

St. Mark's Hall Crowded With Players at 106 Tables

A SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

The annual turkey card party which is eagerly looked forward to by a number of Bristol people, as well as those residing nearby, was held last evening in St. Mark's School Hall on Radcliffe street, given by St. Mark's Church. The hall was filled to capacity and an evening of congeniality and sociability was enjoyed.

There were 106 tables of card players, comprising 78 tables of pinochle; 26 of "500" and two of bridge. The playing was spirited and interesting and the prizes tempted the players for usefulness and attractiveness, both for the home and the person. In addition to these prizes were fifteen turkeys. During the evening, refreshments of sandwiches, cake, coffee and soft drinks were sold.

The successful competitors and their scores in "500" were:

N. J. McGinley, 4060; B. M. Thornton, 3920; Catherine Dugan, 3830; Anna Malone, 3810; Elizabeth Brennan, 3710; G. Hartman, 3690; Mrs. L. Dries, 6560; Nan Brennan, 3480; A. Hammell, 3400; M. M. STROKE FATAL TO ASSISTANT Supt. OF COUNTY SCHOOLS

S. M. Smyser Dies Within A Few Hours After Attack

WAS ALONE AT TIME

Found at Foot of Stairway in His Morrisville Home

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 24.—Failing to rally from an attack of apoplexy which he suffered yesterday morning, Prof. S. M. Smyser, assistant superintendent of public schools in Bucks County, died last evening at 6 o'clock at his home, 326 North Pennsylvania avenue, without regaining consciousness.

Professor Smyser, who was one of the best known schoolmen in Bucks County and for years a prominent resident here, suffered a stroke yesterday morning shortly after his wife had departed for Philadelphia with her sister to do some shopping. Raymond Rose, who was delivering ice at the Smyser home, discovered the educator unconscious at the foot of a flight of stairs.

Dr. J. M. Klenk and Dr. Arthur Wareham were summoned. Meanwhile William Gentry, a neighbor, called the Philadelphia bus terminal and the officials in charge there notified Mrs. Smyser of her husband's illness upon her arrival there.

In addition to maintaining his position in the educational activities of Bucks County, Professor Smyser found time to interest himself in borough, social and church affairs. He was a Republican and served on the Morrisville Borough Council for four years. He also acted as auditor for that body for some time.

As an active member of the Morrisville Grace M. E. Church he held membership on the official board of trustees of the congregation and taught the men's Bible class for many years.

Professor Smyser was born in Cumberland County, Pa., on February 1, 1871. He attended the Cumberland County Schools, the Churchtown High School and entered upon the teaching profession upon his graduation from the Cumberland Valley State Normal School in 1891. He taught first at Lancaster and then at Shiremanstown. About five years after his graduation from normal school, Professor Smyser was appointed to a teaching post in Carbon County, which he relinquished the following year when he became principal of the Franklin Independent School District.

In 1906, Professor Smyser resigned as principal of the Coopersburg School, Lehigh County, to assume the position of supervising principal of Morrisville Borough. Nine years later he was appointed as assistant supervisor for the Bucks County Schools.

In 1893 Professor Smyser married Ella M. Oswald, of Welsport, who is his only survivor.

GOLDEN WHEAT

Chairman Stone, of the Federal Farm Board, was more prophetic than he knew at the time when last July he said decreases in world production must furnish the basis for material improvement in world wheat prices. At least those decreases came sooner than his fondest hopes.

After reaching record lows last summer American wheat prices have started upward due to decreases in actual and prospective supply in important wheat-producing countries.

Countries in Europe which expected to be almost, if not quite, self-sufficient are being forced into the market. Rains damaged the German and French wheat crops. Russia overestimated her output and cannot deliver to countries which had contracted for her surplus. The Australian carry-over is small, the surplus in the Argentine is of poor quality and winter wheat in the United States got off to a poor start owing to the fall drought, which, aided by a 15 per cent decrease in acreage, will slash deeply into the domestic surplus.

The bears in the wheat pits have been routed, agricultural confidence has been stimulated, farmers who couldn't sell their wheat for love or money may yet get a good price for it and the farm board can rest a little easier.

One upward fluctuation in the grain market does not make a 10-year's prosperity wave, but it provides a good starting point for a general improvement all along the economic sector. Many methods have been suggested for bringing back our Bonnie Prosperity but none is more likely to be accompanied with success than a long wave of profitable farming.

SPECIAL STAMPS

The post office department is showing its new line of fall goods and they have met with instant demand. The autumn creations are exceptionally popular. One especially—the new Yorktown memorial stamp—has taken the country by storm.

Although the Yorktown stamp has brought many dollars into the post office department's coffers it was not issued for money-making purposes. It so happens that in this case sentiment did not interfere with utility.

In its striking color and novelty of design and with its heads of the heroic trio of Yorktown—Washington, DeGrasse and Rochambeau—this special stamp is in great demand among both philatelists and the general public. It will be the start of many new stamp collections.

There has been a dozen or more special issues of stamps in the United States in recent years but in none of them was the government actuated by mercenary motives. They were commemorative stamps, even though some of the events hardly merited such recognition.

CHALLENGE

"Martin," Jim said, when they had passed out into the drive, speaking very quietly, very meaningfully, "don't you think you had better throw in your hand?"

The man gave a little frightened start.

"I—I don't understand you, sir," he faltered after a moment's pause. But it was clear that the words, their evident implication, had come as a sudden shock.

"Oh, I think you do really," said Jim gently—"You underrate your own intelligence. You know, Martin, a twenty-year stretch for a man at your time of life, with the almost certain prospect of dying in prison, hardly a pleasant thought, is it? That's what's coming to you like an express train!"

Jim paused, looking hard at the white-faced man.

"Twenty years," he repeated, "unless you throw in your hand whilst there's time. If you decide to help the police, you've a chance of saving your skin; they won't worry over much about small fry like you if they can land the big fish. Only the sands are fast running out now."

Martin shook his head. "I—I don't know what you're talking about, sir," he repeated.

But there was wavering irresolution in his voice. The man's frayed nerves were betraying him. Jim gave a careless, smiling shrug.

"Oh, well, if you want to make sure of that twenty stretch, my man. Do you realize we've known for days that you, Sant, Martell and Frome are deep in this plot against Mr. Severn?"

No answer from Martin, his face as pale as the drifting sea mist about them.

"When you thought you saw Mr. Severn tonight you were in a sweat of panic because he had apparently 'escaped,'" went on Jim drily. "The fact that he is still a prisoner doesn't mean you are safe, Martin. Better make a clean breast of all you know before you find yourself caught up in the relentless machine of the law. That's your last chance, my man, your only chance."

The low whispered voice sounded almost casual. But if Martin's face told anything, the unweary man was left in no doubt that behind them lay a grim inflexible threat.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

They were still on the footpath that led to the side gate. Already the mist had swallowed up Martell.

Almost as Bill was speaking, he saw Jim stop abruptly. The latter's foot had suddenly touched something lying on the path. Jim stooped to feel gropingly with his hand; then struck a match.

As the tiny tongue of flame sprang up in the darkness it was to reveal something that brought a swift, startled look to his eyes.

"Bill!" broke from Jim Wynter in sudden excitement, "Look—look!"

It was a wig that the matchlight had surprisingly revealed and a wig that could not have been lying there long, for despite the damp sea-mist it was still dry as Jim Wynter snatched it up.

"Looks pretty significant, don't you think, Bill?" Jim said suddenly. Significant enough to have brought a swift, startled comprehension to the eyes of each, as he and Bill stared at this curious find.

That Severn should have bolted as if in panic from his friends had seemed amazingly incomprehensible. No longer any need to wonder why. What Jim had just stumbled on in the misty grounds had put the solution into their hands.

An illness in boyhood had left Frank Severn with an inch-deep splash of grey just above the forehead, that contrasted almost startlingly with his black hair. As that haggard face of a few minutes ago had looked in at them out of the mist, the light from the window had thrown up vividly that strange greyish-white streak—just such a streak as their eyes were staring at now.

It might have been exactly copied from Frank Severn's hair, this black wig with that one greyish-white lock in front. Not difficult to put two and two together now!

"So it wasn't Frank at all who ran past Ilsham down this path," said Jim drily. "Mere an impostor who couldn't have tricked us into taking him for Frank without such a wig as this!"

Bill Grayson nodded.

BAFFLING

"An impostor, all right," he agreed with a shrug, "this wig looks pretty convincing on that point. Gave a rattling good impersonation, too, grey lock and all, whoever he was, and made a masterly get-away. But who the deuce was it? I'll swear Sant and Martell were not in the know."

"No, they were as much taken in as you and I," Jim said, "the bad scare it gave 'em shows that. A bit mysterious, Bill. Anyway it can only have been someone who suspects the truth about Frank Severn."

When earlier that night Helen Blair had tried to whisper that interrupted warning, Jim asked himself if she could have been the writer of those two anonymous letters with their revelation of the secret treachery going on in this house of intrigue. But now in a sudden flash of intuition he knew. Not Helen Blair, that unknown writer—but tonight's mysterious impersonator of Frank Severn.

"Shouldn't wonder," agreed Bill, thoughtfully. "Not a woman then, this elusive someone in the background, who seems to prefer to play a lone hand against this bunch of crooks. Interesting if he's coming out into the open at last. I'm rather curious about that bird. And I wonder just exactly what his game was, masquerading as Severn?"

"Perhaps to give these men a panic-moment and see how they reacted to it," suggested Jim. "And incidentally he raised our hopes, only to let us down. It did look as though poor old Frank was safe out of those damned treacherous hands at last!"

There was keen disappointment in his face. He was still left with the haunting fear that these men who had his friend in their power might, if once they began to apprehend serious danger to themselves, decide that Frank Severn dead might be a less menace to them than Frank Severn alive. Jim had a vivid memory of that dead man in the car outside Monksilver.

WEDGED

On their way back to the house they paused to examine the window that had refused to open. It had been wedged outside. The man masquerading as Severn had left little to chance in his plans to get away unchallenged.

They found the front door standing open. Inside the hall Ilsham was talking to an excited Sant, who turned quickly at the sound of their return.

"Back already? But where's Frank?"

There was a subtle change in Sant. It was not only that his usual florid color was back after that momentary faintness due to the excitement and a weak heart. There was no longer any trace of that appalled guilty fear that his eyes had betrayed at the sight of a supposed Frank Severn at the window.

"Not a sign of him," said Bill ironically. "Not a chance of finding him in this mist—especially as he seemed so anxious to put all the distance he could between himself and his friends at Beggar's Court."

"But—but we must find him! It was so amazing to see him, such a relief after our terrible anxiety, that in the sudden excitement my poor old heart let me down, or I should have been out searching too," Sant cried. "Only it seems incomprehensible that Severn should have bolted like that."

"He did bolt—and we shan't find Frank Severn tonight," said Jim drily. He found it difficult just now to speak even civilly to Sant. "You may be sure we shouldn't have come back so soon unless convinced of that."

"If only I'd known who it was who dashed past me!" said Ilsham regretfully. "But of course I've never seen Severn before. This chap had a dark moustache and black hair streaked with grey, I fancy, though I only saw him for a second."

"Oh, it was Severn of course," Sant said. "Well, it's something to know the poor fellow's alive. If only those enemies of his don't recapture him before he's safe with his friends!"

It struck Jim as significant that subtle change in Sant's manner. The old self-assurance was back. He was no longer a man afraid. A reprieved man who has seen a danger suddenly threaten and pass. In some way, as Jim was convinced, Sant too had now discovered that the man at the window had not been Frank Severn.

PALE

They went into the drawing room, where Ilsham was introduced to Helen. She was still looking white and troubled.

"Then you haven't found him?" she broke out.

"No luck, I'm afraid, Miss Blair," Jim said. "We searched for a little while, but we had to give it up as hopeless."

"What ought we to do? We're so helpless in this mist. Ring up the police at Trayne?" went on Sant, very conscious of the part he had to play of zealous friend.

Bill shrugged his shoulders.

"Please yourself of course, though I doubt if it would be any good—to-night, at any rate. Severn has friends in the village. He may be sheltering with one of them."

"If only he hadn't bolted so amazingly from his friends, poor old Frank! Please heaven, tomorrow will bring us news!" cried Sant emotionally.

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 21 cars was 2,284 cents a mile—less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 24 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

COLLEGIATE FOOTBALL FINALE ON THURSDAY

By Gene Myers
(L. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

When the last whistle has shrilled and the green of the grid-iron fades in the twilight of Thanksgiving Day, the 1931 drama of collegiate football in Pennsylvania will have staged its finale. And the curtain falls on a season little more than mediocre for several elevens, while for others, nearly perfect.

Pitt, Penn, Temple, Carnegie Tech, Allegheny and Bucknell can boast of enviable records, but the remainder of the Keystone State's grid squads are happy that the bruising defeats are a thing of the past.

Six contests are carded for Thanksgiving Day, with the Penn-Cornell and Pitt-Nebraska struggles in the line-light. In both games victories are needed to vindicate the claims of Pitt and Penn to enlistment among the leading elevens of the East.

All men on the Panther squad are in good condition, with the exception of a few minor injuries, and Pitt is expected to down Nebraska.

Coach Harman of the Penn staff has been shifting his material from one position to another, in an attempt to fit his proteges to their ideal posts. Harman also has tuned up Penn's running attack. The Cornell-Penn game is a toss-up.

Lebanon Valley is given the swing in the game with Albright at Reading. Pennsylvania Military College should tramp St. Joseph at Chester. Gettysburg can hold its own against Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster and St. Thomas is expected to top Canisius at Scranton.

Here and There in Bucks County

est in the society's work more than the growing number of dogs and cats cared for—and the fact that last month there were forty visitors to the shelter.

Gratification was expressed by the members at the meeting after the report of Mrs. David N. Fell, Jr., treasurer and chairman of the shelter committee, was presented. Mrs. Fell, who has given a great deal of time to directing the work of the society, explained that the expenses of the work, especially in the maintenance of the kennels and the operation of the animal ambulance, have been cut tremendously since the new field secretary, Mr. Evans, had been in charge of the work. Donations to the society also have increased.

One of the forward steps of the society has been the appointing of Mrs. George Whitney, of Mechanicsville, as Educational Secretary, who will have charge of the humane education department in the schools and elsewhere.

In addition to building the kennels and improving the residence property, the society has also remodeled the barn property so that it will be much more useful than before.

Income was greatly increased the past Summer by receipts from card parties and rummage sales conducted by women members.

POOR ATTENDANCE

The moving picture benefit given by Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand Theatre, yesterday afternoon, was very poorly patronized. There were about 100 in the theatre. The receipts are to be given to the Central Relief Committee of Bristol.

Naccarro Luciano Weds Miss Florence Di Tulio

An attractive wedding took place in St. Ann's Catholic Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock when Miss Florence DiTulio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis DiTulio, of 8 Beaver Dam Road, became the bride of Naccarro Luciano, of Wilmington, Del. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marcellino Romagno.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Fannie DiTulio, as maid of honor; Miss Daisy Salustio, as bridesmaid. The little flower girls were Florence Antonelli, daughter of Mrs. Anna Antonelli, of Jefferson avenue, and Yolanda Puccio, daughter of Mr. Leon Puccio, of Pond street. The little ring-bearer was Natalie Fuselli, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fuselli, of Ardmore. Serving Mr. Luciano as best man was Alex. Rassi, of Wilmington.

The bride was attired in a white satin gown modelled on simple lines, the close-fitting bodice featuring the V-shaped neckline and short puffed lace sleeves. The bias cut skirt was long and fell in graceful folds. Her veil of tulle edged with lace was cap-shaped and trimmed with a band of rhinestones and orange blossoms on each side. She wore long lace mits, white satin slippers and silk stockings, and a string of crystal beads, a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was white roses and valley lilies.

Miss Fannie DiTulio, the maid of honor, wore a gown of peach taffeta, fashioned with a close-fitting bodice, V-shape neck-line, lace yoke and short puffed sleeves. The skirt was long and full and trimmed with three wide ruffles around the bottom. Slippers, lace mits and a felt hat trimmed with satin ribbon, which tied under the chin, were the same tone as her dress and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Salustio, the bridesmaid, wore a lovely gown of orchid taffeta, made with tight-fitting bodice, round neckline, short puffed sleeves and a long full skirt trimmed with ruffles of the material. She wore slippers, long lace mits, Greta Garbo horse hair hat to match her gown and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The little flower girls wore dresses alike in a pretty shade of powder blue taffeta. The bodices were tight-fitting and sleeveless and the necklines were trimmed with iridescent banding. The skirts were very long and full and trimmed with two rows of ruffles on the bottom and the waistlines were finished with a girdle of taffeta tied in a bow in the back. They wore blue satin slippers, anklets and iridescent caps edged with the taffeta. They carried flowers to match the color of their dresses.

The little ring-bearer was attired in a black satin suit with white satin blouse. He wore black slippers and white anklets and carried a white satin heart shaped pillow trimmed with lace, satin ribbons and orange blossoms.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. About 150 people attended and they were from Bristol, Burlington, Ardmore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and Trenton. The home was decorated with the white crepe paper streamers. During the evening, the happy couple departed for their honeymoon and they will be away two weeks. Upon their return, they will reside in a newly-furnished apartment in Wilmington, where the groom is employed.

The bride's travelling costume was a Spanish tile dress trimmed with black velvet, black coat, hat, slippers, gloves and taupe stockings.
